How does exploring a new place make you feel? Do you find yourself taking note of the differences in landscape, mentally jotting down the colours and shapes?

“Recently I’ve been lucky enough to experience some travel and found myself taking note of these changes unable to quiet my mind until I’ve brought those new colours and compositions to the canvas.

‘Field Notes’ celebrates finding beauty in the things that surround us...whether that be noticing the new colours with the changing of seasons or taking note of the beautiful shapes from little flowers in our very own backyards.

My hope for this exhibit is that it will bring joy to each viewer and reason to take note of the beauty within colours and shadows of our everyday surrounds.”

Monique Fedor is a full time mother, wife and artist among many other things. Creating is her passion and outlet. Monique pours her heart and soul into painting. The creative process is deeply personal and can be inspired by all sorts of things that have touched her heart in a small or big way.
